SUBJECT: ADVENTURES IN COMMUNITY FILMMAKING

THE TIMELINE FESTIVAL OF SHORT FILMS

Following the very successful filmmaking workshops held at Kenilworth earlier this year, the excellent work produced by the students will be showcased in The Timeline Festival of Short Films planned as the spectacular grand finale to this years Kenilworth Celebrates Arts Festival.

The Timeline Festival features the work of Community Filmmakers in capturing, preserving and showcasing vital elements of our Social History --- Yesterdays, Todays_ and Tommorrow.

Director of the festival and veteran filmmaker Kev.Franzi is a great enthusiast for Community Filmmaking.

“Video Filmmakers are the story tellers of the 21st Century. So, whatever your interests may be, recording our Social History gives us the broadest possible spectrum of subjects and stories for our cameras to explore.

The stories Community Filmmakers capture all have relevance and value to someone or some group in our society.

These Video Films become a resource of great value now and in the future, they are Pictures with a Purpose”, he said.

The Timeline Festival aims to encourage and promote high quality video production that will entertain, inform and inspire.

The Festival will then showcase that work, and promote its distribution and archiving.

To quote Benjamin Britten “Music means nothing! – unless it is performed”.

But you must capture that “music” (video) first --- that’s your job ! Learn to do it well.

The Festival will be screened in the “Roxy Cinema” at the Kenilworth Museum on September 29th and October 2nd.

Entries close on August 27th. The prize pool is $ 1500.
