

PRESS RELEASE

DATE: 28/07/2011

SUBJECT: Brett Jones at the KENILWORTH CELEBRATES! Art Workshops

Brett A. Jones' star continues to rise in the art world. Best known for his amazingly detailed freehand graphite drawings, he is now one of the resident artists writing regular drawing articles for "Artists Back to Basics" magazine, which has worldwide distribution. He is described as the publisher as "the most suitable artist in Australia to be writing this drawing column".

His services as a freehand drawing tutor are also in great demand with the few workshops he finds time to offer in Maryborough being quickly booked out. His mostly self-taught skills and techniques in the field of freehand drawing have helped a lot of people over the years to improve their own arts practice across the board with everyone from novices to established artists benefiting from his insights into how to draw freehand.

He has been involved with the "Kenilworth Celebrates" art festival workshops for the last few years which bring by their own admission "the finest tutors from each medium available in Australia" together for the weeklong festival in September. Some of the tutors travel from as far as Sydney and Melbourne for this very highly regarded art festival which also includes the Kenilworth Art Show, the $15 000 Kenilworth Art Prize, and a host of other activities and events.

Brett A. Jones' method of freehand drawing is explained in a way everyone can understand with very practical demonstrations and a high degree of personal guidance. All basic equipment and materials needed for the 4-day course is supplied and Brett's easy going manner and obvious passion for the subject always ensures an entertaining and rewarding experience. The Kenilworth workshops are the only other place he is available to teach his unique style of drawing apart from the workshops conducted in Maryborough so anyone interested in further details or bookings can ring Brett at (07)41287682 or workshop co-ordinator Rodney bloomer at (07)54 723088 or 0409 171003.
